Col. Tremayne's Will.

Mr. Bold, the solicitor, found among the correspondence on his office desk one morning, a letter bearing an Egyptian postmark. It turned out to be a communication from a stranger, informing him of the death in the Soudan of Colonel Ernest Tremayne, and reminding the lawyer that the will of the deceased was in his possession.

'Aha!' exclaimed Mr. Bold, glancing at the inscription. 'Will of Mr. Ernest Tremayne, eh! Dated sixteen years ago. Executor, Mr. J. Rosseter.'

'Captain Rosseter! I know the man,' exclaimed Mr. Bold. 'I forgot what I've heard of him, but I fancy his reputatian is a little tarnished. So he is the executor, is he? Oh! a very doubtful character—quite on adventurer, in fact,' said Mr. Bold, looking more and more scandalized. 'I wonder what the will says,' he added.

Under the circumstances he felt no scruple about opening the envelope and unfolding the will. And glancing at its contents, he said aloud:

'He appoints his friend, James Rosseter, executor, and trustee and guardian of his infant daughter. Everything to the child.'

'Not much of an executor and trustee,' observed Mr. Bold's clerk, Whittaker, disparagingly. 'A nice sort of guardian for a young lady.'

'I'm afraid this is very serious, Whittaker,' said Mr. Bold, looking perturbed. 'I had entirely forgotten about this will, or I would certainly have suggested to the testator to make another. He made it when quite a young man—I recollect now his telling me his wife was just dead—without sufficient reflection as to the character of his friend. In those days I dare say there was nothing against this young Mr. Rosseter.'

Mr. Bold was one of those old fashioned, fussy, self-important practioners who are apt to assume a sort of paternal authority over his clients. But he was extremely honest and conscientious, and his main idea was to promote the welfare of those who consulted him. He had for some years past, heard rumors concerning Captain Rosseter, which he now considered he ought clearly to have brought to the testator's knowledge. It was true that he was not personally acquainted with the captain, and could not vouch for accuracy of the scandals that had come to his ears. But he knew Captain Rosseter to be an impecunious gentleman, addicted to betting and gambling, a club lounger, without visible means of subsistence; a loud-voiced, jovial. easy going, dissipated person, of a type regarded by grave men of business with horror and distrust.

The old lawyer fidgetted a good deal during the day, nor was his uneasiness allayed by the report of his clerk ot his interview with Messrs. Overland & Co., the army agents. From these gentlemen he had learned that Colonel Tremayne had contrived to amass a considerable fortune during his exile and had remitted home for investment from time to time sums amounting in the aggregate to nearly £20,000. Whittaker could obtain no information regarding the daughter of the deceased man. Col. Tremayne's agents recollected that they used at one time to pay for the child's schooling at Brighton, but this was many years ago, and, at the present moment, they knew nothing whatever about the young lady.

'She can't be of age yet,' remarked Mr. Bold. 'My recollection is that when the will was made the child was a baby. That was the impression I gathered at the time.'

'The young lady may have died,' suggested Whittaker. 'It doesn't follow that she is still alive because the testator did not alter his will.'

There is one thing quite certain,' said Mr. Bold, with emphasis; 'Captain Rossiter must not be allowed to have the handling of £20,000. He must renounce, and the money must be paid into court, which will appoint a proper guardian. Did you find out his address?'

'Blenheim Club,' responded Whittaker.

'Humph!' snorted Mr. Bold, seizing his pen.

However, he wrote a polite note to the captain, informing him of Colonel Tremayne's death, and requesting him to call on the following morning with reference to the will.

Mr. Bold was very determined to have his own way, and he felt very little doubt that he would succeed. Consequently, when Captain Rossetter called the next day, he received him with an air of calm asurance and superiority which was calculated to lend weight to his counsels.

'Captain Rosseter,' he said, a little stiffly, as his visitor seated himself in the client's chair, 'I want to have a chat with you about our poor friend's will. Had you heard of his death, by the way?'

'Yes,' said the captain, who seemed somewhat subdued and ill at ease in the presence of the lawyer.

'Ah! What was it? That dreadful climate, I suppose?' inquired Mr. Bold, quietly taking stock of his companion. 'Now this is a very unsatisfactory document, he added, in a confidential tone. 'To begin with, it is sixteen years old. Extraordinary that the testator should not have changed his views in sixteen years.'

Mr. Bold glanced up at Captain Rossetter as he spoke; but the latter either had nothing to say or else did not choose to commit himself to an opinion. He remained silent, and Mr. Bold instinctively mistrusted him the more on account of his reticence.

'By his will, made sixteen years ago,' said the lawyer, meaningly, 'the testator left everything he possessed to his daughter, and appointed you sole executor and trustee and guardian of his child.'

The lawyer looked keenly at his companion as he made this announcement, and felt puzzled at his demeanor. The captain hung his head for a moment and then blew his nose violently. One would almost have imagined that he was sentimentally affected by the news. But the lawyer, being in a suspicious mood, was chiefly struck by the fact that Captain Rosseter studiously avoided meeting his gaze.

'I suppose the young lady, Miss Tremayne, is alive still?' inquired Mr. Bold.

'Yes,' answered the captain.

The captain nodded, but seemed by his manner to wish to change the subject. Mr. Bold noticed this at the time, and thought a good deal about it afterward.

'Of course, Captain Rosseter,' said Mr. Bold, in his most convincing and and authoritative tone, 'you will not take upon yourself the responsibility thrust upon you by this will, which, no doubt, was never intended to stand.'

'Why do you say that?' inquired the captain, rather quickly.

'Well, frankly, Captain Rosseter, between you and me, do you consider that you are fitted to be a young lady's guardian? Excuse my outspokenness,' added the lawyer, endeavoring to soften his remarks by smiling and showing his false teeth. 'but really, now, would you in the testator's place ——'

'Anyhow, there is the will,' interposed Captain Rossetter, evidently not liking the insinuation.

'Yes, here is the will, but I should certainly advise you to wash your hands out of it,' said Mr. Bold, in a fatherly manner. 'What I propose to do is to pay the money—by the way, I suppose there is money?'

'I suppose so,' said the captain, with real or affected earnestness.

'Pay the money into court and get a legal guardian appointed,' resumed Mr. Bold, with cheerful confidence. 'You will thus be relieved of all responsibility and trouble.'

The captain, who had become very red and uncomfortable, made no answer to this suggestion, but stretched out his hand and took up the will. He read it through carefully, and then proceeded to fold it up.

'I am entitled to have this, I suppose,' he said, almost defiantly.

'Well—er—yes, in strictness,' replied Mr. Bold, completely taken aback. 'But it has to be approved and deposited in the probate court.'

'Yes, I know,' replied the captain, rising from his seat and thrusting the document into his pocket.

'Am I to understand,' gasped Mr. Bold, turning crimson, 'that you propose to employ your own solicitor?'

'I have a solicitor,' said the captain, shortly. 'Good day to you, Mr. Bold.'

'Stay! Stay, sir!' exclaimed Mr. Bold, endeavoring to control his indignation, which almost choked him. 'I must trouble you to give me a receipt for the document.'

'By all means,' said the captain, who seemed to have recovered his assurance.

The lawyer struck the hand-bell upon the table sharply, and with forced calmness instructed Whittaker to prepare the necessary receipt. This formality being completed, the captain strode out of the office, leaving the lawyer and his clerk staring at one another in speechles indignation.

'The man is a rogue!' said Mr. Bold as soon as he could speak.

'Not if I can help it!' exclaimed Mr. Bold, wirh unusual energy. 'I'll apply to the court immediately and have the man removed from his office.'

'You will have to get evidence first,' said Whittaker, prudently.

'Pooh! his reputation will be sufficient,' returned Mr. Bold, impatiently.

However, when he came to make inquries about Captain Rossetter—which he poceeded to do forthwith in the heat of his virtuous indignation—he found it more difficult than he had imagined to convict him of serious misconduct. The captain had led the life of a man about town, had had numerous transactions with the money-lending fraternity, had played high and drank pretty freely, and there were dark corners in his career which would not, perhaps, have stood the test of censorious investigation. But there was no recorded act of his that could be pointed out as disgraceful or dishonorable. To Mr. Bold's secret vexation he found that people were inclined to judge the captain leniently, to speak lightly of his faults and lay stress upon his good nature, his easy generosity and his jovial disposition. Moreover, it seemed that during the last year or two Captain Rosseter had abandoned his usual haunt and occupations, had given up cards and had shown distinct symptoms of sober respectability.

The result was that the lawyer could not see his way to make a case against Captain Rosseter which would justify him in invoking the interference of the court or chancery in the interest of the captain's ward. Mr. Bold did not admit that he was beaten, even to himself, and his prejudice against the captain was as strong as ever. He was convinced in his own mind that Captain Rossetter contemplated a gross fraud connection with his trusteeship, and he fully intended to checkmate him. Meanwhile, however it transpired that there was no living member of the Tremayne family who could be brought forward to pose as next friend to the young orphan, and his technical difficulty, combined with the absence of proof of the captains doubtful reputation, caused him to defer taking any steps.

At length, however, after many weeks had elapsed, Whittaker came into his master's room one day with a startling piece of intelligence. The ever-watchful clerk had discovered that Captain Rosseter had purchased for himself an estate at Stanmore for £7,000.

'At least he bought it in his wife's name,' explained Whittaker. 'But the question is, where did the money come from?'

'Good heavens!' exclaimed Mr. Bold. 'Married, eh! is he? I heard a rumor, but he isn't supposed to be married. However, as you say, the question is, where did he get that £7,000 from?'

'I don't think it is difficult to guess,' said Whittaker, with a grin.

''Pon my word, Whittaker, I'm afraid it is a case of serious fraud. I know for certain that the man has not £7,000 of his own,' said the lawyer, getting excited.

'I wonder where the young lady is?' exclaimed Whittaker.

'We must find out,' said Mr. Bold, energetically. 'Overland & Co. gave you the address of the school at Brighton, didn't they? Well you must go down there at once, Whittaker, and trace her. I feel it my duty to investigate this matter, for I should not be the least surprised if it transpired that this Captain Rosseter has been helping himself to the trust money.'

Whittaker, being entirely of the same opinion, started off on his mission with out delay, and was absent about a week, during which time Mr. Bold fumed with impatience and curiosity. Whittaker's report, when he returned, was not calculated to allay suspicions. He had traced Miss Tremayne through her girlish career, from Brighton to a school at Cheltenham, and from thence to Bath. At the latter city she had resided until a year or two ago with an elderly lady, who had suddenly died, since which event nobody knew what had become of the young girl or where she had gone after leaving Bath.

'I've made up my mind what I will do, Whittaker,' said Mr. Bold, after discussing the situation with his clerk. 'I shall go and see captain Rosseter and insist upon his telling me where the young lady is. If he refuses, I shall feel justified in taking legal steps. My belief is that the poor young girl is dead or is being kept out of her inheritance, or part of it.'

'It looks black—very black,' acquiessed Whittaker.

The consequence was that next day Mr. Bold, who was a plucky determined little gentleman, and was capable of making personal sacrifice for the sake of justice and principle, journied down to Stanmore and presented himself at the door of the captain's newly acquired residence. His object was to take his adversary by surprise and to profit by his confusion. His design was partially successful, for no one could have looked more startled and confused than Captain Rosseter, when his sturdy accuser was ushered into his presence.

'Mr. Bold!' exclaimed the captain, nearly dropping the post-prandial pipe which he was smoking.

'Yes, sir,' said the lawyer severely, and as soon as the door was closed he confronted his companion and said: 'Captain Rosseter, I have come down here, as solicitor to the Tremayne family for many years, and as solicitor to the late Colonel Tremayne, to demand of you information concerning Colonel Tremayne's daughter.'

'Sit down,' said the captain, not very politely, perhaps, but with tolerable calmness.

'No, thank you, Captain Rosseter,' returned the lawyer, in a tone which showed that he did not intend to be trifled with. 'I give you fair warning that if you don't answer my question I shall invoke the aid of the law to find out what I have not been able to discover myself.'

Before the captain could reply the door opened, and a young lady entered the room. The lawyer turning round, only caught a glimpse of her as she endeavored to retire, but he perceived that she was young and pretty. The captain, however, called after her.

'Annie, my dear, come in. Let me introduce you, Mr. Bold, to my wife.'

Mr. Bold bowed stiffly, and the young lady, as though instinctively suspecting the lawyer's hostile intentions, crossed over to her husband's side and laid her hand lovingly on his shoulder.

'Annie, my darling,' said the captain, with singular gentleness, 'you must let me tell Mr. Bold your little history. How your father, my good friend, on leaviug England, laughingly confined his little daughter to my care. How I used to call and see you at school with my pockets full of sweetmeats. How your bright face and innocence brought sunshine into my heart when it was full of darkness. How you grew up and teased me and made me realize the unworthiness of my life. How I strove to be better, only to learn my weakness. How at length, upon your old school-mistress, with whom you lived, dying, two years back, you voluntarily consented to devote yourself to reforming——'

'Nonsense, James,' interposed the girl, putting he little hand over his mouth and kissed him impulsively.

The captain borehis infliction cheerfully enough, though his eyes were moist as he turned again to the lawyer and said: 'The long and short of the matter is, Mr. Bold, that I married this young lady two years ago, with the full consent of her father, Colonel Tremayne.'

'You might have said so when you called upon me that day,' retorted the lawyer, feeling smaller than he had ever done in his life.

At a sign from her husband Mrs. Rosseter glided out of the room, and when the door had closed the captain retorted: 'So I might, if you had been civil. But your manner was so suspicious, and, I may add, insulting—'

'I'm very sorry,' interspersed the lawyer, looking shamefaced.

'Pshaw! Never mind my dear sir,' cried the captain, heartily. 'It was my own fault—an unpleasant reminder of my past life. Thanks to my wife, I have mended my ways, turned farmer, grown respectable—the least I could do in return for the sacrifice she made in throwing herself away upon me. There was no concealment; she married me with her eyes open, and her father also gave his consent after I had made full confession of my career. He knew, poor fellow, what it is to fall. God bless Ernest Tremayne! He trusted me with his child and his child's fortune. In all your experience, Mr. Bold, you will never find a more faithful guardian and trustee than I shall be, in spite of my antecedents.'

'I believe it, Captain Rosseter—I honestiy and sincerely believe it,' exclaimed the lawyer, genuinely moved; 'and if you will permit me to apologize to you, and to shake you by the hand, I shall feel more comfortable—I shall indeed.'

A Powerful Jaw.

Chief Drummond, of the United States Treasury Department, stationed at New York, is a broat-shouldered, heavy-set man, and wears heavy-rimmed spectacles. He has a wonderful jaw and can bite a counterfeit coin in two, from a dollar to a five-cent piece. No matter when or where he is, he invariably bites a spurious coin in two when he sees it. He bit a dime for a street car conductor not long ago, and the latter wanted to jump on him. The plucky Chief made him show every coin he had. A passenger declared it was an outrage and told the Chief that he frequently passed counterfeit money. When the detective calmly opened his coat and showed his badge, the self-confessed shover of the queer immediately left the car.

The famous little Stiletto, the fastest steamer afloat, it is said will be bought by the government for a torpedo boat.

The Fatal Folding Bed.

An expression of profound gloom on the face of a friend led to inquiries which elicted a tale of sorrow and suffering. 'Do I look mournful?' he asked. 'Do I bear the appearance of a man whose soul has been entered by the iron of adversity? Well, that's the way I feel.

You know, I moved day before yesterday. Well, hurt by the unfeeling remarks of my late landlady and the fact that she retained my trunk (as a gage d'amour, I suppose) I sought the seclusion of a West Side boarding house. The room is pleasant and the man who occupies the other half a very nice fellow. Night before last I went home early, and when ready my new chum boldly approached an innocent-looking piece of furniture, and after a little sparing for time let in with right and left and brought to view a comfortable bed. I had never seen a folding-bed before, and was a little astonished.

However, I made no remarks but turned in. Last night my chum was out, and I didn't know what to do. I loafed around the room, now and then casting a glance at the folded bed and admiring its compactness and air of gentility, but somehow I did not feel like tackling it all by myself. But it had to be done. I remembered that my chum had first lifted the top. I did that. But when I let go it came back with a slam that started the baby owned by the second floor front into a wild symphony of woe. Then I sat down and thought. To gain time on the bed I undressed. Say, did it strike you as chilly last night? No? Well, it was. Indeed it was cold. The combination of that fact and my abreviated costume urged me to renew the attack. This time I pushed the top past the centre of the spring, and when released it went on with a noise loud enough to arouse the pug in the room across the hall. By that time I was reckless. I seized a strap and pulled. The whole thing begun to come. I strapped it half way and considered. Considering was hard work. So was holding. I pulled. It came, and I went. But I didn't go far enough, and the bed caught me. I was underneath. The Charleston man on the floor below dreamed he was at home.

Well, when I got out and took an inventory, I was minus considerable skin, but the accession of my eyebrow balanced things. The bed was open, but the middle was way below the average. But I was too impatient to be particular. With considerable emphasis I turned out the gas and rolled in. As soon as I hit the bed it shut up—that is, as close as it could. It was close enough. For about ten minutes I would have swapped places with any one of the seven anarchists and given him odds. When I got out of that place there was not enough left of the bed-clothes to make a respectable bandage. I know, because I tried it. What I suffered you will never know.

This morning the landlady informed me, that had she known I was a subject to delirium tremens, she would have refused the admittance that gave me a chance to ruin the reputation of her boarding house. As I left the house the boarders poked their heads out and whispered: 'That's him; he had 'em bad last night,' and similar encouraging remarks.—New York News.

Rice at the Fair.

Everybody, almost, knows what a wide-out short-up figure Billy Rice, the minstrel, has. Well, about two weeks ago (at least so we are informed) Billy was at an agricultural show in a one-night-stand town, and as he stood in a thoughtful attitude contemplating the exhibit, the editor of the country paper and a farmer passed by.

'Look there,' whispered the editor, 'that's Rice.'

'Where?' inquired the farmer.

'There,' said the editor, pointing toward William.

'Rice?' repeated the farmer, inquiringly.

'Yes.'

'Well, by gosh, it's the funniest rice I ever seen. It looks a blame sight more like a pumpkin. Let's go an' take a look at it.'

A Ship's Remarkable Voyage.

Captain J. N. Armstrong, now in command of the bark Kalakaua, loading lumber at Port Blakely for the west coast of South America, was in Seattle the other day. Captain Armstrong will be remembered as the commander who brought the ship Templar from New York to San Francisco a few years ago on one of the most remarkable passages on record. After being out for some time, the captain went to a foreign port, and for some reason his crew, excepting the officers, left. Finally two English ships came in, and from them Captain Armstrong made up a new crew, and after being out four days, the entire crew, including the captain and his daughter, were taken down with yellow fever. The first mate died, and several of the sailors. Those who had the disease less violent threw the dead overboard, one by one. The ship drifted about without a pilot or navigator for more than a year. The captain, for two years, was so violent from the rayings of the fever that he had to be chained to the deck to keep him from jumping overboard. He wears the scars from the chains and lashings to this day.

During the year that the ship drifted about, the second mate and three or four of the sailors recovered, but being out of sight of land, and not understanding navigation, they were powerless to do anything with the ship. Finally the daughter regained her reason, but not her strength. One day she sent for the second mate and asked him to carry her on deck, which he did. She then sent for her father's instruments, and by the aid of these and her knowledge of navigation she figured out the location of the vessel. She then took the charts from the cabin and traced out a route to San Francisco. She then practically took command of the vessel and ordered the second mate and surviving members of the crew to make sail, and gave them the direction in which to sail. Every day for months she would be carried on deck to take the sun and give her orders.

Days and weeks passed and the ship continued on her journey. Being so light-handed the vessel could not be properly handled and could carry but little sail, consequently her progress was slow. After many weary, dreary months the Captain regained his reason, and when he learned of what his daughter had done he was greatly surprised, and declared that had he been placed in the same position he could not have done better. The ship was loaded with general merchandise, the cargo being insured for over $2,000,000. The long absence of the ship, and no tidings from her, led the owners and all interested parties to believe that she, with all hands on board, had been lost. Imagine their surprise, after the supposed fate of the ship had almost passed from their minds when one bright day in summer the ship Templar, with her cargo all intact, came sailing into San Francisco bay.

The Man With a Glass Eye.

[From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

'Speaking of glass eyes,' said an old lawyer, 'brings to mind a little incident that occurred in Chicago. Among our young professional men is one whose brilliant black eyes would attract attention anywhere. He goes much into society, and is quite a favorite among the ladies because of his eyes. One of these beautiful black eyes is glass, but it seems so much the counterpart of the other that not one person in a hundred would detect its artificiality. Among the members of his profession not one knows that the young man has only one good eye.

On one occasion he escorted a young lady to the refreshment tables and entertained her with pleasant chat in a way that he thought was making a favorable impression. As they were taking ice-cream he looked up as she gave utterance to some startling exclamation, and was surprised to see her eyes fixed on him with a look of mystified intentness and horror. She was a well-bred girl, but something so astonished her that she continued to look at him in a way that raised the question of his sanity. A fly had lit square in the centre of his black glass eye and remained there, he, of course, unconscious of its presence. The spectacle of that eye looking at her with a fly on it and the owner making no attempt to brush it off was too much for his companion. His explanation, even, was not quite satisfactory. She had believed so implicitly in those magnificent eyes that she has since that time regarded him as sometning of a fraud.'

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, NOV. 18TH, 1886.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

ILLINOIS at the recent election defeated the constitutional amendment prohibiting convict labor.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR BLACK seems reconciled to his defeat but lays the blame to an indifferent and poorly organized Democratic party.

"BOLTING" does not take well in this county and some of the so-called Democrats will find it out to their sorrow at some future day when they come around "button-holing" the voters and asking for votes.

THE democratic yeomanry of Miles township in the late election rose up in their might and by their straight ballots expressed their disapproval of political tricks that were intended to force half-breeds into office.

THE feeling among Philadelphians to use Governor Pattison's name in connection with the mayorship of their city is growing stronger daily. He seems to be the one man who stands in favor with all classes of the people, irrespective of party lines.

THE re-election of Hons. Rhone and Woodward means the indorsement of faithful, honest and able representatives. And that they were elected by increased majorities means that Centre county will not be a republican county yet for a while.

THE contest over the Harrisburg Postoffice is said to be quite warm. Among the candidates for the postmastership, Hon. B. F. Meyers, former editor-in-chief of the Patriot, is most prominent. His appointment, we think, would be but a just recognition of faithful party service which Mr. Meyers has done in the past and would be hailed with pleasure by the people of this state.

THERE is considerable speculation as to Gov. Beaver's cabinet and Col D. H. Hastings, of Bellefonte, is mentioned as one of the more prominent members of that body. Politically we have very little sympathy with that gentleman's success, but as a man and lawyer we know of no one who is more deserving of distinction than Mr. Hastings and we think he will grace any position he may be called upon to fill in the State department.

HENRY REED, ESQ., was appointed to the position of Associate Judge of Court of Common Pleas, No. 3, of Philadelphia, vice Judge James R. Ludlow, deceased. Mr. Reed is one of the ablest lawyers at the Philadelphia bar and in that respect Governor Pattison's appointment is all right. But then Mr. Reed is a Republican and we along with many other democratic newspapers can't see the object of giving the opposite party the preference. It looks so much as if the Democratic party was scarce in material fit for places of that kind.

COL. MALTHEW S. QUAY has formally announced himself as a candidate for the United States Senatorship from this state and that settled the matter from the word "go." The Republican members of the Legislature met on Friday night and solidly indorsed Boss Quay for United States Senator, while they strongly favored Henry K. Boyer, of Philadelphia, for Speaker of the House. Barker, Wells and Cooper will please take a back seat now. The Republican machine is again in splendid working order.

IT is safe to presume that the democrats have by this time got over their disappointment and are ready to take a fresh start for the next time. Taking everything into consideration the Democratic party is in as good, if not better condition, to enter the presidential campaign of 1888, than it was before the election. The states on which democratic success will hinge two years hence are still in the democratic column, and the party has learned some valuable lessons by the queer turn which the election took in some localities. They will profit by their experience.

Robinson for Speaker.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—Hon. John B. Robinson, of Delaware county, has announced himself as a candidate for Speaker of the next House of Representatives at Harrisburg. He will oppose Mr. Boyer, of Philadelphia, although his candidacy has no significance so far as the United States Senatorship is concerned. Mr. Robinson is for Quay as well as Mr. Boyer, and he says he thinks that "nothing but Quay's death or some other act of God can prevent his election." Mr. Robinson's brilliant record in the last Legislature is not forgotten. He formerly lived in Pittsburg, and his substantial support of all Pittsburg bills for that reason has made him a warm friend with Allegheny county members.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1886.

The question of vital interest now to the Republican Senators is whether the Nebraska legislature will return Senator Van Wyck or some more reliable brother. During the last session whenever 'crazy horse' Van Wyck as he was sometimes called, arose to ask the consideration of a resolution which was inimical to any fat corporation, or want against any old abuse, there was a good deal of laughing and winking on the sofas in the rear of the chamber. In like manner Senator Riddleberger always seemed to succeed in making himself ridiculous. When he insisted on a hearing in opposition to executive sessions of the Senate, he was invariably out of order, yet whenever he made the same point of order on another Senator it so happened that the point which was good as against him was not good as against others. Now it appears that the stone which the builders rejected has become the head of the corner. These two Senators who were objects of ridicule and irritation to the Republican brotherhood, hold the balance of power between the two parties in the Senate. They were never in harmony with their party and could never be relied upon when a vote was called. So, as they are not Republicans in good and regular standing, the Senate is not Republican, and there is fun ahead. The Senate stands thus: 37 Democrats, 37 Republicans and the balance of Power party, composed of Senators Van Wyck and Riddleberger. It is quite certain these gentlemen will be very graciously treated this winter by Republican Senators although the Philadelphia Press said it might be better to have the Senate Democratic than to have it Republican by the aid of such men.

A finer tribute is seldom paid to a man in public life than the recent expression of interest in Mr. Carlise's fortunes, by the best people of every partisan faith. The example is all the more significant from the fact that in becoming the object of so much unfeigned regard, the Speaker has never abated one iota of his loyality to the Democratic party.

Miscellaneous News.

Many Persons Hurt.

An explosion occurred in Henry H. Sheep & Co's Cigar Box Manufactory, Philadelphia, last Thursday, which blew out the rear wall and set fire to the building. One woman, aged 30, was killed and fifteen others were more or less injured.

DR. SAWBONES says that the surest way to take a cold is to be always hugging the stove. Young man remember this, and when you go to see your girl on Sunday night don't spend your time hugging the stove; but if you do get a cold Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine can be relied upon to cure you.

Changes in Post-Offices.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The Postmaster General to day ordered the discontinuance of ninety-two fourth-class postoffices. Mainly for the reason that there were no candidates for postmastership. In a large number of the cases the business of the offices did not justify their continuance. Nearly every State and Territory is represented in the list. During the eleven days of this month there have been 139 postoffices discontinued and twenty-four established.

DID it ever occur to you, thoughtful and prudent reader, that Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine must be an article of real merit, or how could the manufacturer ever be able to advertise "money refunded to all dissatisfied purchasers."

A Fly Wheel Bursts.

LEBANON, Pa., Nov. 14.—An eight-ton fly wheel at Zimmerman's Steam Flour Mill burst yesterday afternoon and wrecked a portion of the building. A piece of the wheel weighing about 300 pounds was hurled through a brick wall and across the street, where it buried itself several feet in the ground. Another heavy piece flew through the engine room, wrecking everything in its path and tearing off the roof. The damage will amount to about $3,000. No one was injured.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belleville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at J. Eisenhuth's drug store.

Busy Times in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 15.—For the first time in several years there is no strike of any consequence in Pittsburg or the surrounding district. Every furnace, iron mill, glass factory, tannery, oleomargarine factory, foundry, cooper shop, oil distillery, and other factory is in full operation, and if the coal mines are not running it is for want of water, not of orders. Labor leaders claim that there is a larger proportion of the workingmen of Pittsburg employed at the present time than in any other city in the Union. They attribute the absence of strikes principally to the introduction of natural gas, and the government of the workingmen of this locality by sliding or yearly scales.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. ### To the Land of Brigham Young

Seventeen Converts Preparing for a Trip to Mormondom.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 11.—New England is a little village a few miles back in the coal valley on the Monnongahela river. Two or three Mormon missionaries took up temporary abode there a few months ago and began to preach their doctrine to the people. Some twenty of the cititens including their families, have been converted to the Mormon faith and are making preparations to depart for Utah. The leader of the Mormon emissaries is known as Rev. Barns. Information from that place is to the effect that seventeen of the converts will leave for Utah in a few days, while the remainder will go just as soon as they can dispose of their little real estate, which many of them have secured from the savings of almost a lifetime. The missionaries tried to establish a following at several points along the river, but were not successful to any degree until they reached the village of New England, which is largely composed of English coal miners who have but little intercourse with the outside world.

A SIGN in Cleveland reads "Ice Kream Sallune" which is probably the worst cold spell of the season; but for the worst spell of cold Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine is the best cure you will be able to find.

Automatic Letter Boxes.

The Convenient Postal Contrivance to be Tried in Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—An automatic box is being put up on the lamp posts in Brooklyn to supply the public with postage stamps, postal cards, a pencil and postal letter envelopes. At any hour of the day or night a citizen may go to one of these boxes and drop a penny into it at which there will appear a postal card and a pencil with which to write a letter. If he has a letter already written and merely wants a postage stamp to mail it he may drop two peanies in the box at which, presto, a two cent postage stamp will come out of the box. These convenient boxes are already in use in London and are much liked there. The boxes in Brooklyn are an improvement on those in London. They look like writing-desks and are 75 inches high by 17 inches deep. Each box is divided into several drawers—one for stamps, one for postal cards, one for stamped envelopes and one for letter paper. There is a slit for dropping a coin over each drawer. When the proper coin drops in it sets in motion a bit of machinery which pushes out the articles wanted.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for December, that old favorite, is before us, ahead of all others. It may be called a "prize number." It has two splendid steel-engravings: one, "Meadow-Sweet," as lovely as we ever saw, and a title-page, with a beautiful girl's face, also unrivaled: in fact, "Peterson" is now the only magazine that goes to the expense, all the year through, of these costly and elegant original steel-engravings. There is also a mammoth colored fashion-plate, likewise engraved on steel, and colored by hand—a "perfect love of a thing," as the ladies would say. Still more, there is a colored pattern, in Berlin work, such as would sell for fifty cents but which is given, gratis, to subscribers, for a Christmas-gift. Beside these, there are some fifty woodcuts of fashion, embroidery and crochet patterns, etc. The literary contents more than maintain the long established reputation of "Peterson" as giving the best original stories. Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Edgar Fawcett, Mrs. John Sherwood, etc., etc., being regular contributors. We do not see how any lady or any family can be without this magazine; its tone is always high and pure, so it is just the one for the home circle. The price is but two Two Dollars a year. To clubs, it is cheaper yet: four copies for six dollars and forty cents with an extra copy to the person getting up the club. For larger clubs, costly premiums are given in addition. Specimens sent, gratis, if written for, so that there may be no deception. Now is the time to get up clubs. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Vanderbilt's Poultry.

Rare Specimens of Foreign Breeds That Cost Fifteen to Forty Dollars Apiece.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt has just received from abroad 30 fowls of rare breeds, which, were they put on the market, would bring from $800 to $1,000. They have been sent to his large poultry establishment at Oakdale, L. I., and will be used for breeding purposes. Among them are the Labresse and Creyecour, from France; the Houdano and the Andalusian, from Spain, and the white and black Minorcas from England. The latter are quite rare and are not bred largely even in England. They readily bring from $15 to $40 apiece. They are very handsome, the black species having a red face and hanging comb, with a very rich greenish black plumage. The great value of the breed is in its egg producing qualities. Their record in England is 200 eggs a year for each hen, while the best egg producing hen here, the white Leghorn, averages 50 or 60 less than this. The Minorca hen's eggs are noted for their size, averaging six to the pound, with a very fine flavor. The Labresse, the new French breed, is noted as both a fine table fowl and egg producer. Among the other fowls in the lot were some game bantams, some red-breasted game birds, and some pure bred Pekin ducks. Mr. Vanderbilt's poultry stock is one of the finest as to fancy fowls in the United States, and contains specimens of the choicest breeds, American as well as foreign. He has about 800 thoroughbred fowls in all.

A Saw Mill Blown Up.

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 14.—A special last night from Boyston, a lumber town down in the big woods, says the boiler of Nash's saw mill exploded, completely wrecking the mill and killing John Nash, the proprietor, and his son, Edward. Their bodies were frightfully mutilated and were hardly recognizable. The detonation was heard several miles. The cause of the accident is unknown. The damage to the mill is $6,000.

THE U. S. Dispensatory and the Science of Chemistry justify the assertion that for tonic, diaphoretic and expectorant properties, no combination of remedies can be devised to equal in power and efficacy Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine. It is a safe and reliable standby in case of croup and whooping-cough. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

—A good sized coal shed has been erected at the rear of the Evangelical church on Penn street.

—The house on Main street, recently vacated by Abs. Harter, is now occupied by Mr. Buck, the tailor.

—The foundation walls for J. D. Lose's new house on Penn street are up and ready for the frame work.

—We always carry a complete stock of Carpets and Carpet Chains.

D. S. KAUFFMAN & Co.

—Not to be sneezed at—the fine stock of Boots and Shoes at Kauffman's. Seeing is believing, therefore go and see.

—They are daily getting in new goods at Kauffman's store and consequently their stock is always fresh and clean.

—Porkers are being knifed at a fearful rate these times and they are dying by the dozen, generally with a sore throat.

—W. J. Springer butchered two hogs on Tuesday, which weighed 865 pounds. Guess Jake can squeeze through this winter.

—Jacob Bartley, of North street, an old citizen of this town, is prostrated by severe sickness and is in a very feeble condition.

—Mrs. A. Walter, we regret to state, has been on the sick list for the past week. At this writing she shows signs of improvement.

—The combination, proportion, and process in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla are peculiar to this medicine, and unknown to others.

—Judge Furst, of Bellefonte, positively denies the published report that he intends resigning after General Beaver's inauguration.

—Dr. J. F. Harter was confined to the house several days last week by sickness, the result of a bad cold. Glad to see Shady out again.

—Our lady readers will find it to their advantage to read over the new advertisement of Mrs. Lydia Brumgard, the milliner, on Main street.

The world moves—our grandmothers used brown sugar, we use white; they used common brown soap, we use white soap. The best white soap is Dreydoppel's Borax Soap, which can be used for all purposes to which soap is applicable.

—Northumberland county intends to petition the coming legislature to pass a bill authorizing the Governor to appoint an additional law judge for that county.

—Two new boardwalks were constructed on Penn street this week, one in front of P. S. Meyer's premises, the other at Jacob Keen's residence. Both are substantial plank walks.

—The cold wave which almost froze the marrow out of a fellow's bones last Saturday and Sunday has gone and milder weather with occasional sunshine has taken its place for a little while.

—The Delightful New-Step Polka, by Will L. Thompson, is one of the most beautiful pieces of music ever published. Any music dealer will mail it to you on receipt of price, 50cts.

—The 14th annual convention of the Union county Sunday school association is at present in session at Mifflinburg. It commenced last evening and will last until to-morrow evening.

—"How do you get such splendid bread?" is a frequent question asked among housekeepers of town. "I use the National Yeast Cakes, for sale at J. W. Stover's grocery," is the answer.

—Always on hand—Fresh Oysters at J. W. Stover's.

—J. Eisenhuth informs the public that he has added to his drug stock the celebrated KEYSTONE MALT WHISKEY and other pure liquors. Sold only on prescriptions of physicians, for medical use. 33-6m.

—The Ladies' Mite Society of the Aaronsburg Reformed church will give a musical and literary entertainment in the chapel of their church on Saturday evening next, to which all are invited.

—F. D. Luse & wife were to Union county last Thursday to participate in a party which was held at John Zeigler's home, in Swengle, celebrating Johnny's birthday anniversary. They report a grand old time.

—The Mifflinburg Times says the cause for the scarcity of pennies at present is that the children are everywhere "saving them up" for Christmas, and predicts that after the holidays there will be a flood of copper coin.

—Annie, the little daughter of Wm Bright, on Main street, who had a serious back set from her late typhoid fever attack, and whose recovery was very doubtful for several days, we are glad to learn is considered out of danger now.

—The Charles Ripka estate in Gregg township, which was put up at public sale last Friday, was not sold. The attendance was too small owing to the very wet and unpleasant weather. Another effort to sell will be made in the near future.

READ.—The Aaronsburg Meat Market will supply parties who need larger quantities of beef for butchering time with quarters and halves and sell it as cheap, if not cheaper than anyone else. They will also deliver the beef to the house if so desired.

MEAT FOR WINTER.—Moyer & Kreamer's meat market on Main street will be kept open during the coming winter and persons wishing to buy large quantities of beef for butchering time will do well to apply at their place of business before buying elsewhere.

—Strange how queer! We hardly hear much less see anything of the results of deer hunting expeditions this season. There must be something wrong with the deer. They are either very scarce or else they persistently keep out of sight of the hunters.

—Prof. Keller, of the Millheim grammar school spent Sunday and part of Monday at his home in Snyder county, returning on Tuesday morning. The young misses were consequently allowed to stay at home on Monday and help their mothers at the washtub.

AARONSBURG GRAMMAR SCHOOL REPORT.—No. of pupils enrolled, males 10, females 15, total 25; Per cent. of attendance, males 93, females 91. Visitors, Geo. Bollinger, Eddie Foreman. D. R. FOREMAN, Teacher.

CHOICE CLOVERSEED FOR SALE.—The undersigned has a large quantity of extra cloverseed on hand and for sale. Persons in need of this article will please call on me at my residence in Haines township or address me at Aaronsburg, Pa. W. W. BOWER. 42-6t.

—Prof. Bierly's singing last Saturday evening was fairly attended and Mr. Bierly proposed to hold a concert at the close of the term, the proceeds of which are to be used for the payment of expenses. The class signified their approval of the plan by an unanimous vote for it.

—An immense amount of geese and turkeys are being shipped from the rural districts to the cities for Thanksgiving day. That reminds us that if any one of our subscribers will ship a Thanksgiving turkey to this office there will be much thanksgiving in the editor's family. Now please do not all talk at once.

—Tucker Post, G. A. R., of Lewisburg, strongly recommends the candidacy of Capt. Jno. V. Miller, of that place, for Vice Commander of G. A. R. department, Penna., and the Union county comrades seem to be generally for the captain and urge all the posts in the neighboring counties to support him.

—The late cold snap should awaken the contractors for the building of the factory to the importance of using time judiciously and pushing the work with the most possible speed. The next spell of cold weather may be a lasting one and they should by all means get the building up before winter is here with both feet.

—The Gilbert family (colored) of Philadelphia, arrived in town on Tuesday and registered at the Musser House. Mr. Gilbert gave a free lecture that evening in the town hall, his subject being slavery and free negroes. Last night the whole family, consisting of seven persons, and styling themselves "jubilee singers" gave a vocal concert. As we went to press before the entertainment was past we are not able to speak of its merits, but judging from what we heard on Tuesday evening they are a family of superior musical qualifications and sure to please their audiences.

—So you all say—we are headquarter's for Rubber goods.

D. S. KAUFFMAN & Co.

—M. L. Wagonseller, of Selinsgrove, traveling salesman for Artman & Treichler's wholesale Carpets and Oilcloth house, Philadelphia, was in town last Thursday and gave us a short but pleasant call. He says that he expects to furnish the G. A. R. hall in this place with a fine carpet. Being a veteran himself he naturally takes much interest in the affairs of our soldier boys.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial Bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at J. Eisenhuth's.

—Abs. Harter, who carries the mail between this point and Logansville, Clinton county, moved to the latter place last Thursday. In this connection Mr. Harter wishes to notify persons expecting to have public sales this season that he will fill any engagements as austioneer in this or neighboring valleys. He will be in Millheim every day between the hours of 11 and 1 o'clock. In his absence orders for his services may be left at this office.

—The pain and misery suffred by those who are afflicted with dyspepsia are indescribable. The distress of the body is equalled or surpassed by the confusion and torture of the mind, thus making its victims suffer double affliction. The relief that is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla has caused thousands to be thankful for this great medicine. It dispels the cause of dyspepsia, and tones up the digestive organs. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—In looking over the columns of the JOURNAL this week do not fail to notice the advertisement of J. R Smith & Co., the furniture dealers at Milton, Pa. This firm is known to be one of the safest and most reliable in the state and our past intercourse with their house enables us to recommend them to our readers as the best place to buy furniture. The variety in their immense establishment is endless and contains everything from the cheapest piece of furniture to the most elegant and costly suits. Give them a call or write them.

A BOLD THEFT.—On Tuesday morning when Mrs. Lizzie B. Kurzenknabe was in the waiting room of Coburn station to take the eastbound train for Harrisburg, her home, she was relieved of $10 in money by a brazen-faced scoundrel. She was in the act of making change to buy her ticket, and had laid her pocket book on a trunk beside her. Just for a moment she turned her face the other way, but it was long enough for the thief to snatch the money and make off with it. We believe the party who stole the money is known to the lady's father, Mr. Jon. Harter, who fortunately was at the depot at the time and could be of timely assistance to his daughter.

—We noticed in last Thursday's Patriot that Major John F. Frueauff, of Leadville, Col., died on Wednesday, Nov. 10th. Major Frueauff was a native of Lititz, Pa. and was well known in this section of country through his agency for the World Life Insurance Company, in which many of our citizens held policies years ago. He was a member of the Lancaster bar and went to Colorado ten years ago where he was elected Probate Judge in Leadville.

He commanded the 152d Pennsylvania Regiment at the battle of Chancellorville, and was wounded during the engagement. He was twice married and his second wife and a large family of children survive him.

—The anxious little ones are all eyes and ears when the subject of approaching Christmas is under discussion in the family circle. They are beginning to have a foretaste of the happy time that is likely in store for them and which is so highly enjoyed by the youths. The merry holidays are a blessed season for the reappearance of which both old and young are all the better on account of the pleasant associations which may be formed at such a time. Let us all enter into the spirit of a genuine festive time and strive to celebrate the most important event in the world's history in a becoming manner.

ONLY A STEP.—When catarrh has progressed to a certain extent, it is only a step to that terribly fatal disease, consumption. If you have catarrh, even slightly, it is a terrible mistake to allow it to continue its course unchecked. If you will only read, you will find conclusive reasons why you should take Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, in the statements of many people who have been completely cured of this disease in its most severe forms. Send for book containing abundant evidence to C. I. Hood & Co., proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla, Lowell, Mass.

BOTTOM PRICES.—The following quotations from Cohen's New York Cheap Store, corner Main and Penn streets, should be a great inducement to call on him before he leaves Millheim:

HARRY COHEN.

—Mr. Malin, of Bellefonte, the telephone man, was in town on Saturday to collect the fee for the second year's use of the line from Millheim to Coburn. The present subscribers contracted for the exchange instruments until December 1st, 1887.

—Chills and fever. Malaria. "Many cases of fever and ague, dumb ague and congestive chills were promptly arrested and entirely banished by the use of Simmons Liver Regulator. You don't say half enough in regard to the efficacy of this valuable medicine in cases of ague, intermittent fevers, etc. Every case has been arrested immediately. I was a sufferer for years with the liver disease, and only found relief by using the Regulator."—Robert J. Weeks, Batavia, Kane Co., Ill.

FOLLOWED HER HUSBAND.—Just two weeks elapsed since the death of John Swartz, of North street, and now his widow, Mrs. Rebecca Swartz, has also gone to the realms of the blest to join her husband. On last Thursday the lady had an apoplectic stroke from the effects of which she never recovered and on Monday, about noon she departed this life quietly and peacefully. She had reached an advanced age and had spent a life that was characterized by a very modest and sweet disposition. She was known as a faithful wife, a good mother and an industrious christian woman. Mrs. Swartz was a sister of our townsman, R. B. Hartman, and was a native of Hartleton, Union county. She married Mr. Swartz when young and since then has been a resident of this place. They had three sons, Emanuel, George and Reuben, who deeply mourn the loss of their parents. The funeral took place yesterday forenoon from the decedent's late residence and the services were held in the U. B. church by Rev. C. Wortman. Deceased was highly esteemed and the concourse of friends attending the obsequies was, despite the rain, very large.

—The following item from the Altoona Tribune contains so much truth that we concluded to give it space in our columns and at the same time ask the young men of this town to take a few well-meant hints from its contents:

The long winter evenings are again coming on when men have more leisure than during the summer. There are different ways of using this time. Some squander it in the bar rooms or other places, indulging in idle gossip. Others devote themselves almost exclusively to pleasure. A few endeavor to improve by study. The young man who begins the winter by a systematic course of reading or of study is a wise man. He is laying foundations that in due time will bear a goodly structure. he is sowing seed that will bring forth much good fruit in the future. There are many men of middle life in our midst who bitterly lament the misused days of their youth. Then they neglected opportunities to gain information which would have enabled them to fill a much larger sphere than they now occupy. Why should not those who are just beginning life and who are surrounded by opportunities of gaining information, take warning and improve the time in study?

IN MEMORIAM.—The class of the U. B. Sabbath School, Millheim, Pa., Nov. 7th 1886 of which Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Bright was a member, adopted the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS God has called from her sunny home on earth to a brighter heavenly one the spirit of our sister, to join the redeemed multitude, where death can no more throw its darksome shades and carry loved ones away, therefore,

Resolved 1. That the church, the Sabbath School, and especially the class of which she was a member, keenly feel and deeply mourn the loss of her who was so cheertul, so willing, and so ready to do her duty, that the sweet memories of her christian life be cherished by every member and lead them to imitate her many virtues and follow more closely the Master whom she so faithfully served.

2. That we heartly sympathize with the husband, and children of the deceased, whose companionship as a devoted wife, whose love as a Mother, whose genial influence as a christian they will sadly miss, and commend them to Him who knows our every sorrow, and is able to bind up the broken-hearted.

3. That these resolutions be entered upon the records of our school, and copies be sent to the Millhiem Journal and Itinerant for publication and a copy of each be sent to the family of deseased.

Neighboring News.

COBURN.

The cold snap makes our coal dealers smile, as this is their harvest and coal bins are going down fast.

The Calathumpian band was out in full force one night last week giving Felix Breminghouse and bride a serenade. They kept the racket up until a late hour but did not succeed in getting Felix out to set 'em up.

On this Monday F. P. Barker disposed of his stock of goods to a Mr. Meyer from Linden Hall and gave possession of the storeroom and dwelling house to said party. Mr. Barker removed to Fowler where he will farm.

The Whitmer brothers expect to put up their mill at once and we understand the intention is to build it large enough to put in machinery for the manufacture of staves and heading.

Our postmaster is putting a letter box at the depot which will be opened before the departure of all mail trains. This will be a great convenience to the public as nearly as many letters are left at the depot to be mailed as are mailed in the post-office. Our wide-awake post master also expects to have the money order system here shortly.

Joe Kleckner and Andy Campbell were out hunting nearly all week with no success.

Miss Mira Van Valin, who has been spending the summer in Du Bois, Pa., returned home Saturday last. VALE.

SMITH TOWN.

Farmers are busy doing their fall plowing.

Butchering is the topic of the day.

The sportsmen made good use of the late snow. But as to their success we have heard nothing.

Some of our young folks had invitations to the birthday party which took place at the Musser House on Tuesday evening. The lady, Miss Mary Keen, in whose honor the party was given was in our midst the greater part of last summer and has a host of friends here. We wish her a pleasant future.

Quite a number of cows were sold in this vicinity during the past week.

We suppose Harvey Wirt, the steam thresherman can do much better threshing since that little boy arrived in his family.

The weather last Friday was very disagreeable for the celebration of your correspondent's 21st birthday anniversary. We were just 10 days late to put in a full Democratic vote. Many thanks for the valuable presents.

JUMBO.

SPRING MILLS.

James A. Decker our obliging butcher, has sold out his good will and fixtures to James Kennelly, who proposes to continue the business on a more extensive plan.

T. Benton Ulrich, editor of the Centre County Times, was in town on Monday. Apparently he enjoys his new home very much. We notice that he was escorted to the creamery building by our friend, Wm. Pealer.

We are indeed pained to announce the death of W. L. Snyder. He had recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever, so much so that he was able to go out. He ventured to go to see his parents who reside at Potters Mills and after being there a few days he was taken suddenly ill and before medical aid could be summoned he died. He was buried last Sunday at the George's Valley church. His remains were followed to the grave by a large concourse of mournig relatives and friends.

On Monday afternoon as Mr. Samuel Leitzell was returning from Millhem, the front axle of his wagon broke, which so frightened his horse that he at once dashed away at full speed. Mr. Leitzell held on to the lines until he was so badly hurt and shocked that he became unconscious. The horse ran a short distance and by some means fell and in falling broke his neck and died on the spot. Mr. Leitzell was taken to his home, where a physician dressed his wounds. No bones having been broken he is in hopes of being out again in a few days.

Mr. Kintzell and Miss Wealthy Campbell, of Mifflin county, are visiting friends in this place.

D. F. Luse, of Centre Hall, did some fine lettering in the creamery building this week.

The school directors have employed Mr. Cyrus Grove to teach the Decker school. The vacancy was caused by the death of W. L. Snyder, who had been engaged to teach said school. *

MADISONBURG.

Miss Laura Runkle, of Spring Mills is at present visiting her sister, Mrs McClellan, of this place.

Mary Stover has come home to attend school. She had been at Mr. Hosterman's, near Woodward.

Who is going to court next week? L. B. Stover and E. S. Shafer are going for sure, because they are jurors. The rest of the boys will find out later in the week.

Eddie Bierly is fast recovering from his serious spell of headache, caused by a fall.

The Evangelical congregation have tilled up in front of their parsonage and planted trees in front of the church, which adds very much to the appearance or the church premises.

Rev. Basom has a meeting in progress at Yearick's church. Have not heard with what success he meets.

STILL ANOTHER.

REBERSBURG.

The butchering season opened and now we will hear of heavy hogs and long sausages.

Dan. Syler, who during the summer was in the employ of Jacob Gephart left on onday for the mountains, near Fowler's, to work on a lumber job.

Mr. Shenefelt has become the hostler of our hotel.

Jos. Spangler received a letter the other day, dated at Strange, Fillmore Co., Neb., which informed him of the serious sickness of his brother at that place, with typhoid and billious fever.

A new stove was placed in Gramley's school house. This was a much-needed piece of furniture there. A white washing of the walls and a good scrubbing of the floor would greatly add to make the room comfortable and healthy.

The Cummings family of near this place are nearly all on the sick list. Mrs. Cummings we learn is slowly recovering.

S. L Strohecker put a new roof on his house. Sam likes to fix things when it is necessary. Just our fix.

A party of nunters from Millheim, among them F. P. Musser, passed through our town on Friday with three fine deer which they had shot out in the Narrows, where they spent the greater part of last week hunting. But oh, the boys were ringing wet.

We learn that two young chaps in Wolf's school were fined $1.00 for mischievously spoiling one of the new patent desks. Right, and we hope every teacher in the township will treat such effenders the same way.

Mrs. Gable, of Lancaster, a daughter of our townsman Joseph Weber, is at present here on a visit to her father and many friends.

The man that exhibits the "Babes in the woods" is so jouruing for a week at our hotel. The exhibition didn't come off yet.

Oh yes, that revolver; we nearly forgot to make mention of it. Clark still insists that he never sold Ed a revolver. Nevertheless the weapon at last comes back to its real owner after an official threat. Doc says he could not guess how the young man got possession of the revolver. So it is a mystery to us; at the same time when we take a Birds-eye view of the case it seems plain enough. We sympathize with poor John who paid the ready cash for the pistol and is consequently out of pocket.

SQUIBOB.

AARONSBURG.

S. Q. Mingle, of Williamsport, bought the widow Corman property on last Saturday for $490.

The late cold wave took some by surprise. A warm stove was a very comfortable adjunct.

The boys chew tobacco and the girls chew gum. Which of the two is the most unbecoming? To be answered through the columns of the Journal by the proprietor of the Journal Book Store.

The Aaronsburg hunting party, after one week's hunt returned with one wee little deer. The same was shot by Clayton While.

N. W. Cronmiller, of Bellefonte, was down to see his relations and friends. Noah felt as lively as a cricket. Clerking seems to agree with him.

Master Charles Musser has again returned to school at Lewisburg. Hope Charley will find things in such a shape as that he can pursue his studies without any further annoyance.

Charles H. Stover, the leading poultry man of our town makes from two to three shipments of dressed poultry to the New York markets every week

ANOTHER.

WOODWARD.

Thus far our hunters have killed four deer and two bears.

Messrs. Whitmer & Co., of Sunbury, were here last week to purchase a tract af timberland, belonging to Mr. Samuel Motz. We believe a sale has not yet taken place.

Prayer meeting continues each night in the church.

Frank Motz, son of J. C. Motz, has returned home.

News scarce. ARGENTI.

MARRIED.

On the 14th, inst., at the Reformed parsonage in Aaronsburg, by Z. A. Yearick, Mr. James A. Treaster to Miss Sarah E. Styers, both of Coburn.

Salt Rheum

The agonies of those who suffer from severe salt rheum are indescribable. The cleansing, healing, purifying influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla are unequalled by any other medicine.

"I take pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it has done wonders for me. I had salt rheum very severely, affecting me over nearly my entire body. Only those who have suffered from this disease in its worst form can imagine the extent of my affliction. I tried many medicines, but failed to receive benefit until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. Then the disease began to subside, the disappeared, and now I am entirely free from the disease. My blood seems to be thoroughly purified, and my general health is greatly benefited." LYMAN ALLEN, Sexton N. E. Church, North Chicago, Ill.

"My son had salt rheum on his hands and the calves of his legs, so bad that they would crack open and bleed. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. B. STANTON, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

From 108 to 135

"I was seriously troubled with salt rheum for three years, and receiving no benefit from medical treatment I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now entirely cured of salt rheum; my weight has increased from 108 lbs. to 135." MRS. ALICE SMITH, Stamford, Conn.

If you suffer from salt rheum, or any blood disease, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured many others, and will cure you.

Why They Married.

Postal cards were sent out to the married men of a small town in Western New York with the inquiry, "Why did you marry ?" We give a few of the responses :

'That's what I have been trying for eleven years to find out. X.'

'Married to get even with her mother but never have. W.'

'Because I was too lazy to work. I. V.'

'Because Sarah told me that five other young men had proposed to her. C.'

'The old man thought eight years' courtin' was almost long enough. B.'

'I was lonesome and melancholy, and wanted some one to make me lively. N. B.—She makes me very lively. D.'

'I was tired of buying ice cream and candies and going to theatres and church, and wanted a rest. Have saved money. J. C.'

'Please don't stir me up. J.'

'Because I thought she was one among a thousand ; now I sometimes think she is a thousand among one. E.'

'I think it was because I was cross-eyed; now I am afflicted with two pairs of cross eyes daily. Peter.'

'Because I did not have the experience I have now. G.'

'The governor was going to give me his foot, so I took his daughter's hand. H.'

'I thought it would be cheaper than a breach-of-promise suit. A. C.'

'That's the same fool question that my friends and neighbors ask me. C. H.'

'Because I had more money than I knew what to do with. Now I have more to do than I have money with. B. D.'

'I wanted a companion of the opposite sex. P. S.—She is still opposite. A.'

'Don't mention it. F.'

'Had difficulty unlocking the door at night and wanted somebody to let me in. Bob.'

'I was embarassed, and gave my wife the benefit of my name so that I could take the benefit of her name signed to a check. Scroggs.'

'Because it is just my luck. P. J.'

'I didn't intend to go to do it. S.'

'I yearned for company. We now have it all the time. Karl.'

'I have exhausted all the figures in the arithmetic to figure out an answer to your question between multiplication and division in the family and distraction, in addition, the answer is hard to arrive at. Old Man.'

'I married to get the best wife in the world. Simon.'

'Because I asked her if she'd have me. She said she would. I think she's got me. Blivins.'

He Didn't Jump.

Sunday afternoon a man suddenly appeared at a three-story window in an unfinished building on Grand River street and seemed to begin preparations to commit suicide by leaping to the pavement. A crowd of forty or fifty people speedily gathered in a half-circle below, and although all seemed to be aware of what was going on not a voice was raised to prevent the stranger carrying out his designs. He removed his coat and looked down as if estimating the distance. Then he removed his vest and looked down again. Some of the crowd asked each other in low tones if his intention was to jump, and were answered that there was no doubt of it. The man removed his collar and tie after his vest, and then spit on his hands and took his position square in the window. Not one below moved a foot. There was half a minute of silence, during which everybody mentally calculated on the exact spot he would strike, and something like a shudder passed over the crowd. Then the unknown spit on his hands once more, raised them above his head, and calmly remarked :

"My friends, this is to inform you that I shall occupy this building November 1st with a large and well-selected stock of staple and fancy groceries. I shall do a strictly cash business, and it will be my aim to——"

But the last one had turned the corner.—Detroit Free Press.

Metallic R. R. Ties.

The subject of the introduction of metallic railway ties as an imperishable and economical substitute for the present article, has led an authority in the line to write that, after much track walking and observation of the condition of wooden cross ties in various stages of decay, he concludes that the principal cause of their short life is not natural decay, but a decay hastened by frequent laceration and breaking of the wood fibre by the rail spike, the breakage in every instance being from the surface, which is unsheltered from weather, and subjected to constant strain from passing trains. Experiments in stone and iron ties, he says, have proven very unsatisfactory, the wood tie being declared by railroad men unequalled. Anything that will render the service of the latter more lasting must prove a great boon. His own observation leads him to believe that a rail chair which will prevent the mutilation of the tie in question, and at the same time avoid the strain and wave motion imparted to rails by passing trains will add to the average life of the wood tie nearly one hundred per cent., and would at the same time decrease the cost of track maintenance.

A Fashionable Misfortune.

He had been to the city and went home brimful of news.

'You remember the Smiths ?' he asked his wife, 'th' Silver Crik Smiths, them as got rich on their gran'feyther's money.'

Yes, she remembered them.

'I seen 'em. They're way up ; live in gran' house on street they call thavnoo. They ride in a double kerriage and hev no end of money.'

She said she s'posed as much.

'But dumb sakes ! Mandy, you wouldn't want ter change places with her. I seen her a minnit ian' I didn't hev the heart to speak to her.'

She said she'd like to know why; stuck up thing !

'No, she ain't, Mandy; just now. She bin humbled right down to dust. She's as blind as a bat.'

Blind ! She guessed not.

'But she is. Fust she didn't kno me—me that's rid down hill and played tag with her when she warn't knee high to a turkey. Then, Mandy, tho' her eyes was wide open, she went rite along the streets all dressed up in her fine close, and a little mite of a dog was leading her along. He was tied to a streeng, and she had hold 'tother end of the streeng. Now, Mandy, how'd you like to be her ?'—Detroit Free Press

I was attacked with Malarial Fever, became very much reduced, and my friends thought would die. I was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator, and commenced improving at once. Before taking three bottles I was entirely well of Malarial poisons, and have not had an attack of it since.

JOHN T. CHAPPELL, Poplar Mount, Va.

I have had experience with Simmons Liver Regulator since 1865, and regard it as the greatest medicine of the times for diseases peculiar to malarial regions. So good a medicine deserves universal commendation. Rev. M. B. WHARTON, Cor. Sec'y Southern Baptist Theo. Seminary.

"Many cases of Fever and Ague, Dumb Ague, and Congestive Chills, were promptly arrested and entirely banished by the use of your Simmons Liver Regulator. You don't say half enough in regard to the efficacy of your valuable medicine in cases of ague, intermittent fevers, etc. Every case has been arrested immediately. Believe me when I say I was a sufferer for years with liver disease, and only found relief by using your medicine.
